

Rating Action: Moody's downgrades Officine Maccaferri's CFR to Caa3; outlook negative

Global Credit Research - 06 Dec 2019

Milan, December 06, 2019 -- Moody's Investors Service (Moody's) has today downgraded the corporate family rating (CFR) of Officine Maccaferri S.p.A. (Maccaferri or the company) to Caa3 from Caa1, and its probability of default rating (PDR) to Caa3-PD from B3-PD. Concurrently, Moody's has downgraded to Caa3 from Caa1 the rating of the €190 million senior unsecured notes due June 2021 issued by Maccaferri. The outlook changed to negative from stable.

"The downgrade to Caa3 with a negative outlook reflects a further deterioration in Maccaferri's liquidity due to delays in the debt restructuring process pursued by its parent company, exacerbated by a weak operating performance in the first nine months of 2019," says Donatella Maso, Moody's lead analyst for Maccaferri. "As a result, the risk of default because of missed payment or distressed exchange in the coming months is very high," adds Ms. Maso.

A full list of affected ratings is provided at the end of this press release.

RATINGS RATIONALE

The downgrade of Maccaferri's ratings to Caa3 reflects the negative implications that the delays in the restructuring process of its ultimate parent - SECI S.p.A. - is having on the company's liquidity and strategic plans. The timeline of this process has been extended and the restructuring plan shall now be submitted to court on or before 3 January 2020. The search for a strategic partner that could inject equity into Maccaferri and the potential refinancing of the 2021 bond have been put on hold until the court approval is granted.

More importantly, Maccaferri's access to external financing has become and will likely remain severely constrained as a result of SECI's restructuring, resulting in a deterioration of its already weak liquidity position. Maccaferri relies on short-term uncommitted bank facilities and supply chain financing instruments, including factoring and reverse factoring. According to the company, in the third quarter of 2019 it was unable to extend €20 million of credit and factoring lines. In addition, Maccaferri faced shorter payment terms requested by its suppliers and a reduced use of reverse factoring.

As a result, as of 30 September 2019, the company's cash balances eroded to €28 million from €56 million as of 31 December 2018. This cash balance is materially smaller than the €82 million of short-term debt. In addition, the company has to pay €5.5 million interests on its €190 million notes due 2021 in December and June. Maccaferri's liquidity position is especially weak in Italy, where the company had only €3 million of cash and €7 million of available credit lines as of the same date. Moody's also notes that Maccaferri's €35 million factoring line, which was the company's only source of committed financing, has only been extended on an uncommitted basis.

These factors create significant uncertainty over the company's ability to manage its liquidity in the first quarter of 2020, given that the first quarter of the year is typically characterized by near-zero funds from operations and around €30 million of net working capital absorption.

Maccaferri's operating performance significantly deteriorated in the first nine months of 2019, with a 32% year-on-year drop in reported EBITDA, mainly driven by the loss of high-margin sales of defense products in the US and underperformance across Latin America and EMEA markets. As a result, Moody's expects that the company's leverage (measured as Moody's-adjusted gross debt to EBITDA ratio) will rise to 7.5x in 2019 from 6.1x in 2018 and its interest coverage (measured as Moody's-adjusted EBIT to interest expense ratio) will weaken to 0.7x from 1.3x over the same period (2018 metrics exclude non-trading-related one-off items). In Moody's view, this deterioration in credit profile poses additional challenges to the company's ability to execute a timely and cost-effective refinancing of the 2021 bond.

The rating action incorporates material governance considerations affecting Maccaferri's credit profile, including (1) the fact that Maccaferri's parent company is undergoing a debt restructuring, which translates into a weakening of the company's liquidity due to growing risk aversion of its creditors; and (2) the company's aggressive liquidity management, which creates an elevated risk of debt restructuring.

RATIONALE FOR NEGATIVE OUTLOOK

The negative outlook reflects a heightening risk of near-term default on upcoming debt payments or service obligations, as a result of continuing deterioration in the company's liquidity profile.

WHAT COULD CHANGE THE RATINGS UP/DOWN

The ratings could be downgraded if the company fails to make debt-related payments within the applicable time periods, or if Moody's expectations of expected losses for the company's creditors become higher than those implied by the Caa3 CFR.

Upward pressure on the ratings is unlikely in the short term but could arise if the company (1) restores its liquidity position, including the company's ability to arrange external credit facilities and supply chain financing, and boosts its depleted cash cushion; (2) successfully completes the search for a strategic partner that provides equity and allows the refinancing of the 2021 bond; and (3) demonstrates signs of improving its operating performance.
